Apology in Clergy Abuse Case

L.A. cardinal expresses regret to plaintiffs in settlement

LOS ANGELES | Cardinal Roger Mahony, leader of the nation's largest Roman Catholic archdiocese, apologized Sunday to the hundreds of people who will get a share of a $660 million settlement over allegations of clergy sex abuse.

"There really is no way to go back and give them that innocence that was taken from them. The one thing I wish I could give the victims ... I cannot," he said. "Once again, I apologize to anyone who has been offended, who has been abused. It should not have happened, and it will not happen again."

Mahony said that he has met in the past 14 months with dozens of people alleging clergy abuse and that those meetings helped him understand the importance of a quick resolution to the lawsuits.

The settlement will not affect the archdiocese's core ministry, Mahony said, but the church will have to sell buildings, use some of its invested funds and borrow money. The deal between the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Los Angeles and more than 500 alleged victims of clergy sexual abuse reached late Saturday is by far the largest payout since the nationwide clergy abuse scandal emerged in 2002 in Boston.

The settlement also calls for the release of priests' confidential personnel files after review by a judge. GILLIAN FLACCUS (AP)

A Glass of Red Wine CAN Save Your Life!

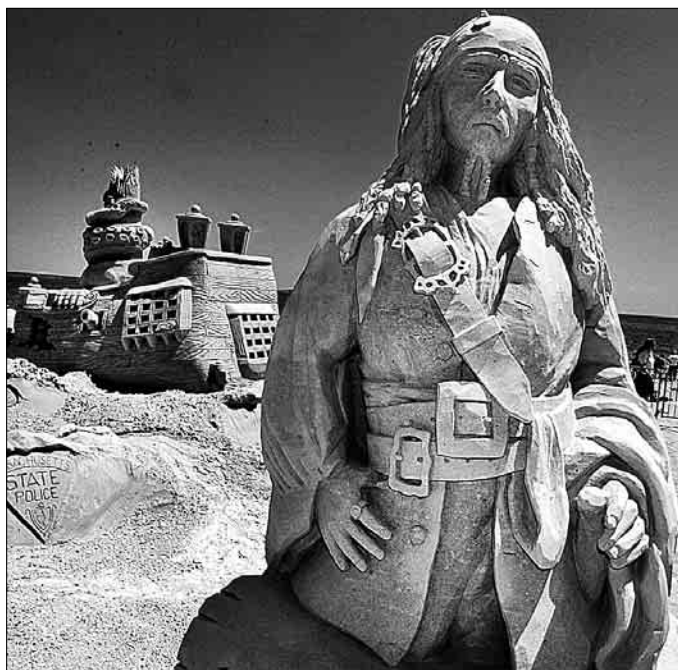

On June 16, a group of friends was finishing dinner on a Capitol Hill patio when a hooded man slid through an open gate and pointed a handgun at the head of a 14-year-old girl. "Give me your money, or I'll start shooting," he said. "We were just finishing dinner," Cristina Rowan told the man. "Why don't you have a glass of wine with us?" The intruder had a sip of their Chateau Malescot St-Exupery and said, "Damn, that's good wine." "I think I may have come to the wrong house," he said before apologizing. "Can I get a hug?" After the guests complied, the man walked away. (AP)

MISSPELLINGS

English: Stumping Everyone since 400

NASA moved space shuttle Endeavour a step closer to liftoff without an essential part: the "u." The spacecraft arrived at the Kennedy Space Center on Wednesday, and officials welcomed it with a banner reading "Go Endeavor." The shuttle's name, however, is spelled the British way, with a "u." It's named after the first ship commanded by 18th century British explorer James Cook. The banner was up for about 90 minutes before being replaced by one with the correct spelling, but with photographers on hand for the arrival of the shuttle, cameras captured the mistake. Endeavour's launch is scheduled for Aug. 7. (AP)

Sand and Deliver

The Fourth Annual New England Sand Sculpting Festival was held this weekend in Revere Beach, Mass., with 15 competitors fighting for a top prize of $15,000. More than 350 tons of sand was brought to the beach (since it apparently didn't have enough) and sculptors had three days to create the bully-tempting artworks. Artists included Dan Doubleday, last year's winner, and Sandi "Castle" Stirling, who should at least win Best Nickname. Proceeds from the festival will benefit beach cleanup. (EXPRESS)

Whatever Gets Your Heart Rate Up, Dude

A man who was sentenced to 30 days in jail for taking his daily run while wearing only a stocking cap, gloves and reflective tape said that the nude jogging made him "feel alive," according to police. Russell Rotta, 49, told police in Jackson County, Mich., that he had been running naked since he was a teenager and that he woke up each day around 4 a.m. to conceal the activity from his wife. Rotta reported running in the nude six miles a day every day. "That is the one wild, crazy thing that I do that makes me feel alive," police quoted him as saying. (AP)

Texans Turn Out to Honor Lady Bird

Thousands line streets to watch procession for former first lady

STONEWALL, TEXAS | Lady Bird Johnson arrived at her final resting place beneath a canopy of oak trees Sunday, beside the late President Lyndon Baines Johnson at the family's ranch in the Texas Hill Country.

Relatives and close friends of the Johnsons said a final goodbye to the former first lady near the banks of the Pedernales River.

Johnson, who died Wednesday at 94, was remembered as an astute businesswoman, a woman who worked to preserve nature and the devoted wife of a president.

"I'm not sure why she was so preoccupied with this, but she always seemed to be wondering if she had done enough for the world, regardless of her own condition," said Lyndon Nugent, her grandson.

Along with Nugent's remembrance, prayers and "Amazing Grace" completed the brief service, held in the Johnson family cemetery where the late president is buried.

Earlier in the day, thousands of admirers, many clutching bundles of the wildflowers she loved, lined streets in Austin and roads in the Hill Country as Lady Bird Johnson's body was taken from the state capital to the LBJ Ranch, about 70 miles west of Austin.

"It's the passing of an era," said Sarah Macias, 48, who watched the procession with her husband.

Bush Not Swayed by Plan

President will not back Iraq strategy proposed by two GOP senators

WASHINGTON | The White House is holding firm on its Iraq strategy in the face of yet another effort to curb the mission, proposed this time by moderate Republicans the administration can ill afford to lose.

President George W. Bush's national security adviser, Stephen Hadley, said Sunday the administration has a "very orderly process" set out for reviewing whether its Iraq strategy is working and that it should be allowed to play out.

When asked whether Bush could live with the plan offered by Senators John Warner and Richard Lugar, Hadley said, "No."

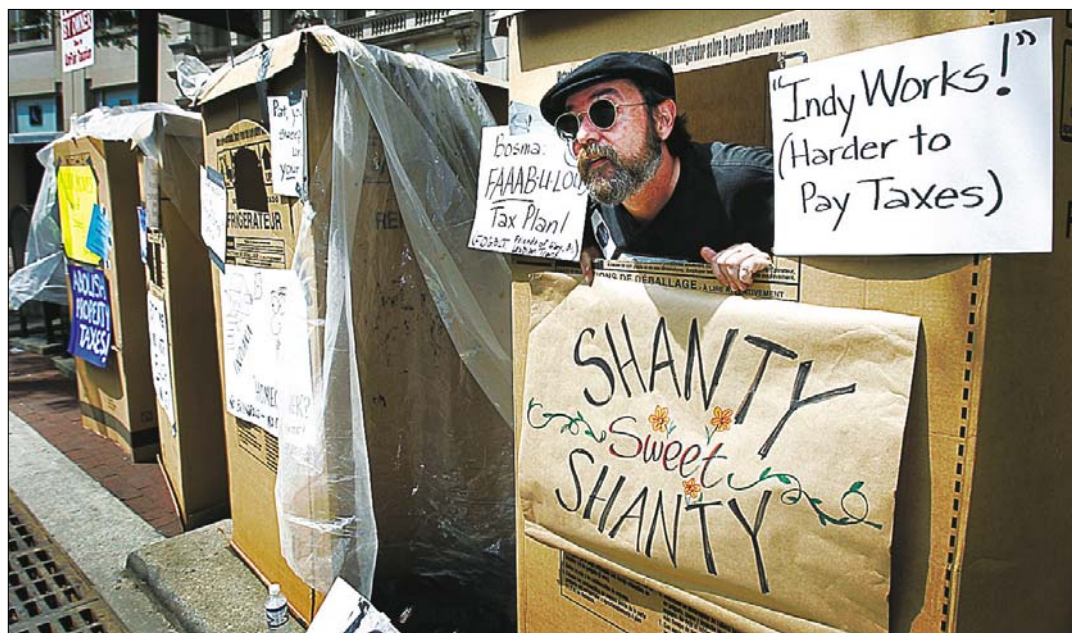

Warner and Lugar proposed legislation Friday that would give

Bush until mid-October to submit a plan to limit the military mission in Iraq to protecting borders, fighting terrorists, protecting U.S. assets and training Iraqi forces.

"They've done a useful service in indicating the kinds of things that we should be thinking about," Hadley said of the senators. "But the time to begin that process is September."

The Senate's Democratic leadership also is not very receptive to the Warner-Lugar proposal, but for different reasons. Democrats favor tougher steps to restrict Bush's options and get the troops out, but need more Republicans to peel away from Bush before they can prevail. CALVIN WOODWARD (AP)

"At first we thought it was just a speaker blowing up or something. I looked over and saw [Robin] on the floor," said Travis Brooks, who had been sitting at the bar.

Militants Abandon Pakistani Truce

String of new attacks kills at least 70 amid anger over mosque raid

PESHAWAR, PAKISTAN | Militants in northwest Pakistan disavowed a peace pact with the government and launched two days of suicide attacks and bombings that killed at least 70 people, dramatically escalating the violence in the al-Qaeda infiltrated region.

The attacks Sunday and Saturday followed strident calls by extremists to avenge the government's bloody storming of Islamabad's Red Mosque and a declaration of jihad, or holy war, by at least one pro-Taliban cleric.

Termination of the peace treaty, the hopeful handiwork of President Gen. Pervez Musharraf, puts even greater pressure on the military leader as he struggles with both Islamic extremists and a gathering pro-democracy movement.

Abdullah Farhad, a militant spokesman, said the 10-month-old cease-fire was being terminated in North Waziristan, a remote area on the Afghan border where the U.S. worries that al-Qaeda has regrouped.

BLAST SCENE: A Pakistani man carries the shattered helmet of a soldier after a suicide attack in the Swat district on Sunday.

He said Taliban leaders made the decision after the government failed to abide by their demand to withdraw troops from checkpoints by Sunday afternoon. "The peace agreement has ended," Farhad told reporters in Peshawar.

The government deployed thousands of troops to restive areas of the province in recent days in hopes of stemming a backlash to the storming of the Red Mosque.

But they failed to protect themselves Sunday against suicide attacks and a roadside bomb which together killed 44 people and wounded more than 100.

In one attack, two suicide bombers and a roadside bomb struck a military convoy in Swat, northeast of Peshawar, killing 18 people and wounding 47, a government official said, citing an official report being sent to Islamabad. RIAZ KHAN (AP)

Aide: Iraqi PM's Quip Misconstrued

Al-Maliki backtracks over bold comments on security capabilities

BAGHDAD | Iraq's prime minister was misunderstood when he said the Americans could leave "any time they want," an aide said Sunday, as politicians moved to end a pair of boycotts that are holding up work on crucial political reforms sought by Washington.

In Baghdad, a car bomb hit a central square in a Shiite neighborhood, killing 10 people and wounding 25. Police said 22 bullet-riddled bodies were found across the capital Sunday, apparent victims of sectarian death squads.

Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki told reporters Saturday that the

A mourner prays Sunday for a relative killed by a roadside bomb in Baqouba.

Iraqi army and police were capable of maintaining security when American troops leave.

"We say in full confidence that we are able, God willing, to take the responsibility completely in running the security file if the international forces withdraw at any time they want," al-Maliki said.

Those comments appeared to undercut President Bush's contention that the 155,000 U.S. troops must remain in Iraq because the Iraqis are not capable of providing for their own security.

On Sunday, al-Maliki's adviser Yassin Majid said that the prime minister meant that efforts to bolster Iraq's security forces would continue "side-by-side with the withdrawal."

On the political front, key power-sharing legislation has stalled in part because of separate boycotts by Sunni legislators and Shiite lawmakers loyal to anti-American cleric Muqtada al-Sadr. Negotiations have been under way to convince both blocs to return during Monday's scheduled parliamentary session.

Trial Puts Turkish Rock to the Test

Band lands in court over song bashing college entrance exam

ISTANBUL, TURKEY | As punk rock goes, a song bemoaning a high school exam hardly sounds like the stuff of anarchy. But in Turkey it can land you in court, as an Istanbul rock band has discovered.

All the song does is lash out against Turkey's equivalent of the SAT, the exam that all Turkish high-schoolers must pass to have a shot at getting into college. High-schoolers the world over may sympathize, but to Turkish prosecutors it's an insult to the state and its employees.

The song by the five-man group called "Deli," or "Crazy," is several years old and came to prosecutors' notice only after a teenager lip-

Turkish punk rockers "Deli" will go to trial Thursday for insulting the state in a song.

synched the song and posted it on YouTube. Now the musicians, along with their manager and a former band member, will go on trial on July 19 in Ankara.

Turkey retains strict limits on expression. Several intellectuals have been prosecuted on charges of "insulting Turkishness."

The punk song is called "OSYM," the Turkish acronym for The Student Selection and Placement Center.

"Life should not be a prison because of an exam," go the lyrics of "OSYM." "I have gotten lost/ You have ruined my future/ I am going to tell you one thing:/ Shove that exam..."

Gathered in a recording studio, the Deli musicians don't look like stereotypical punk rockers. And all passed the university exam.

Bass guitarist Enis Coban says Turkey has more censorship than Europe or the U.S., but less than China or Iran.

"Compared to dictatorships, Turkey is like heaven," he said. "Turkey still has a lot missing, but we believe that it is on the right track to improve itself." CHRISTOPHER TORCHIA (AP)

As he walked through a Harare airport, Dell told a reporter for the country's only broadcaster that he urged Zimbabweans to "keep the faith. Things will change soon."

Zimbabwe has accused Western nations of backing a political and economic campaign for "regime change" to try to oust longtime ruler Mugabe, 83. (AP)

Fireworks Eyed As Cause of Fire In Va. Garage

CENTREVILLE, VA. | A man was apparently trying to make homemade fireworks in a garage when he caused an explosion Sunday in a northern Virginia home, federal authorities said.

Nobody was hurt in the explosion, which occurred before 1 p.m., or in the subsequent fire, which spread to the home, said Capt. Chris Schaff, a spokesman for the Fairfax County Fire and Rescue Department. Schaff said the fire was not completely extinguished until about 5:30 p.m.

Mike Campbell, a spokesman for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives, said flash powder, which is used in fireworks, was found among the chemicals in the garage.

"It just appears he may have been wanting to make his own homemade fireworks," Campbell said. "This is what happens when you do that."

Schaff said there were a variety of dangerous chemicals, including fertilizer, stored in the garage and in a detached shed behind the house. (AP)

Virginia Tech Panel to Rule Broadly

Chairman expects constructive criticism for agencies involved

PETERSBURG, VA. | The governor's panel reviewing the Virginia Tech shootings likely will issue broad recommendations for all the agencies involved in the tragedy — from police to universities to the mental health community, the panel's chairman said.

"I think there will be some constructive — call it whatever you want to call it — criticism, guidance, in most of the fields if not all," Gerald Massengill said in an interview near his home.

The panel has one more scheduled public meeting set for Wednesday in Charlottesville. The agenda includes discussions on how to handle troubled students, civil commitment law reform and other mental health issues. The panel will meet in a closed session with its lawyers Thursday to summarize the voluminous data it has collected on the mentally ill gunman, Seung-Hui Cho, a Tech student who killed 32 people and himself.

Since Gov. Timothy M. Kaine created the eight-member panel shortly after the April 16 shootings, it has had to contend with complex privacy laws, accusations that its review won't be impartial or comprehensive, and the delicate issue of whether to grant the victims' families representation on the panel.

Massengill

But Massengill — a former Virginia State Police superintendent who oversaw the agency's response to the Sept. 11 attack on the Pentagon and the 2002 Washington-area sniper attacks — said the panel has worked hard to ensure the credibility of its investigation.

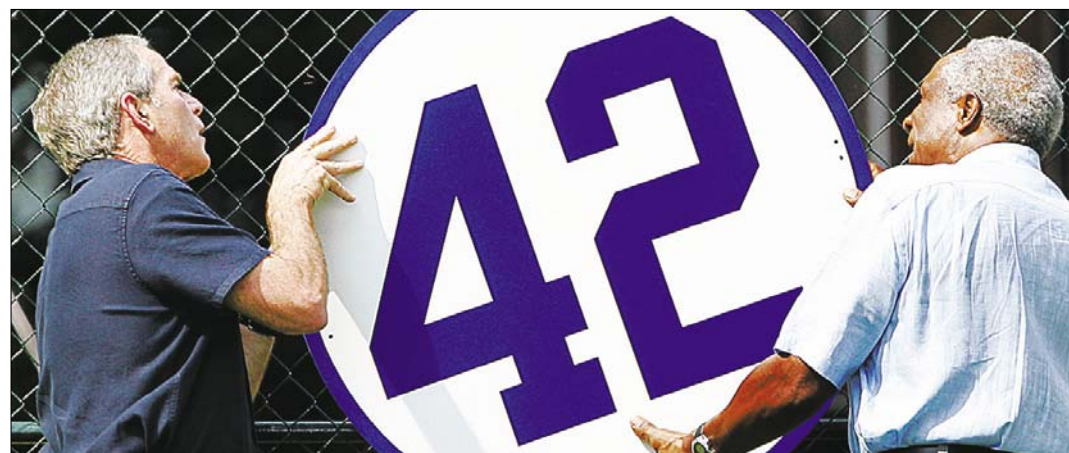

"The legacy of this panel will be the quality of this report, and when we make a recommendation, if there's not supportive reasoning and logic to support that recommendation, then I think the legacy will be in question," Massengill said.

Family members of many of the victims have questioned whether a government-chartered panel can objectively investigate a government-sponsored university. Massengill said he hopes the panel's final report will make recommendations on how privacy laws can be changed to allow vital information to be shared with certain people investigating tragedies while still respecting patient privacy.

Md. Residents Still Spooked By Raid

WHEATON, MD. | Things are quieter around the El Pollo Rico restaurant.

Immigrant employees and patrons of local shops are shying away from the area after an immigration raid on the Peruvian restaurant Thursday morning. Nine employees were seized and four members of the family that owns the restaurant were arrested.

Most lunchtimes, a line of customers would wind outside the door onto the sidewalk for El Pollo Rico's spicy roasted chicken.

A would-be customer peers into the closed El Pollo Rico in Wheaton, Md.

Now, immigrant workers and customers are staying away from the shopping center for fear that the scene will repeat itself.

One man who said he entered the country legally says he quit his job at a nearby business because he feared immigration officials.

But members of groups opposed to illegal immigration say they welcomed the bust of the illegal immigrants, adding that they feel the effort should even be stepped up.

Others in the community worry that the bust makes the whole Hispanic community look bad. (AP)

D.C. Jury Selection Scrutinized

Racial divide among panels incongruent to city's demographics

WASHINGTON | The selection of jurors in D.C. Superior Court is under scrutiny after recent rulings over the racial makeup of panels serving on trials.

Observers say changing demographics in the city have brought more white people into the D.C. jury pool and fewer blacks. But the city is nearly 60 percent black. And according to police, about 80 percent of people who are arrested are black.

In response to the dwindling number of black jurors, a D.C. judge recently took the unusual step of dismissing an entire jury panel. Judge Neal Kravitz says the panel of 90 percent white people to hear the case of a black man created an appearance of unfairness.

The court says very little information is available on the racial breakdown of Washington's jury pool because most people called for service don't answer the optional race question on their summons. (AP)

Power Surge Gives Series to Marlins

Florida backs strong start by Olsen to pick up win over Nationals

NATIONALS | Miguel Cabrera hit two solo home runs and Josh Willingham added another to help the Florida Marlins defeat the Washington Nationals 5-3 on Sunday.

Willingham homered for the third straight game. Cabrera, who withdrew from Monday night’s All-Star Home Run Derby with a shoulder injury, has hit three homers in his past two games.

Scott Olsen (7-7) gave up two runs and six hits in five innings. He walked five and struck out two and improved his home record to 5-2. Kevin Gregg was the fourth Marlins reliever and earned his 20th save in 21 chances.

Jason Simontacchi (6-7) allowed five runs and nine hits in 4 1-3 innings. He walked four (one intentionally), struck out four and allowed home runs on the first pitch of the second and third innings.

Dmitri Young had a single and two RBIs for Washington.

with a 471-foot upper-deck home run to left that gave the Marlins a 4-2 cushion.

“A good hitter hits it out when you leave it over the plate,” Simontacchi said. “Why couldn’t he hit a single?”

Miguel Olivo’s RBI single with one out in the fifth gave Florida a 5-2 lead and chased Simontacchi.

The Nationals got within 3-2 in the fifth when Felipe Lopez’s two-out, bases-loaded single scored Nook Logan, who had doubled to lead off the inning. Belliard, who singled, was thrown out at the plate.

Young’s single off Matt Lindstrom in the seventh pulled Washington to 5-3. (AP)

Orioles Rookie Gets 1st Career Win

Olson allows 2 runs in 5-plus innings to help O’s to a series victory

ORIOLES | Brian Roberts and Corey Patterson homered, rookie Garrett Olson earned his first major league win, and the Baltimore Orioles handed Jose Contreras his AL-high 11th loss in a 5-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox on Sunday.

Aubrey Huff had two hits and two RBIs for the Orioles, who won the final three games of the series after dropping the opener. Baltimore went 5-3 against Chicago this year, its first series win over the White Sox since 1999.

The Orioles have their first three-game winning streak under interim manager Dave Trembley, who is 12-10 since taking over for Sam Perlozzo.

Jermaine Dye homered twice for Chicago, his 16th career multi-homer game and second this season.

Olson (1-0) allowed two runs, six hits and three walks in five-plus innings. It was his second big league start since being called up from Triple-A Norfolk to replace injured Steve Trachsel in the rotation.

Trachsel is expected to come off the disabled list this week, meaning the 23-year-old Olson will proba-

Rivals in college, Gist and Hibbert team up for Pan Am Games

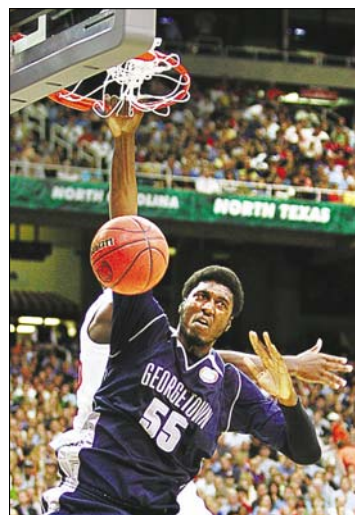

COLLEGE HOOPS | It's been a while since local college basketball fans last saw players from Georgetown and Maryland on the floor at the same time.

It's happening this week, though.

Hoyas center Roy Hibbert and Terps forward James Gist both made the 14-man roster of finalists for the U.S. team for the Pan Am Games in Rio de Janeiro, which will take place July 25-29.

"It's fun," Hibbert said. "We grew up playing against each other, so it's like old times."

Hibbert seems to fit into coach Jay Wright's system particularly well thanks to his skill as a passing center in Georgetown's Princeton-style offense. That will likely translate well into the international game, where zone defenses can be beaten with a center who can redistribute the ball to open shooters on the perimeter.

"You can run your offense through him, and you can run offense to him," said Wright, who, as the coach at Villanova, has seen plenty of Hibbert. "You can run offense for him to score, and you can run offense for him to be a post passer."

As for Gist, Wright described him as "just getting better and better every day."

"He's an athletic guy that can guard on the perimeter and can guard inside, and that's really valuable," Wright said.

Gist said he thrives off that athleticism, and is "always trying go hard, always trying to get the crowd into it [and] get the team into it — anything I can do to just get that spark going." JONATHAN TANNENWALD

Rasmussen Takes Over Tour Lead

CYCLING | Michael Rasmussen won the eighth stage of the Tour de France on Sunday to take the overall lead in the race after a second day of grueling climbs in the Alps.

The Danish rider, the Tour's best climber for the past two years, crossed the finish line alone after the 102.5-mile run from Le Grand-Bornand to Tignes, which featured three Category 1 climbs.

Rasmussen finished in 4 hours, 49 minutes, 40 seconds to win his third Tour stage and don the overall leader's yellow jersey for the first time in his four appearances in the race. Iban Mayo of Spain was second, 2:47 behind, followed by Alejandro Valverde of Spain, 3:12 back.

Rasmussen took the yellow jersey from Linus Gerdemann, who won the seventh stage Saturday. Rasmussen holds a 43-second lead over Gerdemann and a 2:39 gap over Mayo. JAMEY KEATEN (AP)

WNBA's East Meets, Beats West

Squad survives a late surge to win its 2nd straight All-Star game

WNBA | The Eastern Conference finally has some WNBA bragging rights.

After six straight losses in the All-Star game, the East now boasts its first winning streak.

Katie Douglas scored 18 points and Cheryl Ford had 16 points and 13 rebounds to lead the East to its second straight victory, 103-99 over the West on Sunday.

Tamika Catchings had 15 points and 11 rebounds to help the East hold on after nearly squandering a 12-point lead in the final two minutes.

Ford shot 5-for-9 from the floor and 5-for-7 on free throws to earn the game's MVP honors.

Mystics' representatives Alana Beard and Delisha Milton-Jones did their parts as well. Milton Jones finished with 11 points and five rebounds, and Beard put up eight points and eight assists, though she turned the ball over five times.

The West closed with a 12-4 run. Seimone Augustus hit a basket and Thompson and Becky Hammon hit 3s to pull within three with 47 seconds to go.

Anna DeForge made a jumper with 39 seconds to go to push the lead back to five. Hammon made one free throw six seconds later to close the scoring. VIN A. CHERWOOD

Cuban Athlete Missing, May Have Defected

PAN AM GAMES | A Cuban handball player reportedly left his team at the Pan American Games and is suspected of defecting, a Brazilian newspaper reported Sunday.

Rafael Dacosta has been missing from the Pan American village "for several days," according to Brazil's largest newspaper, the Folha de S. Paulo.

The 19-year-old Dacosta did not play in Cuba's 33-20 victory over Canada on Saturday, according to official statistics. He had been listed as unavailable.

Some members of the women's handball team watching Saturday's men's match said Dacosta had a fever, while others said he was somewhere else at the stadium, Folha reported. (AP)

Playing the Field

Nintendo's Wii has upped the ante for a friendlier video game

GAMING | Legendary Nintendo designer Shigeru Miyamoto knows when his grand vision of video games for the masses has arrived.

"When my relatives start talking to me about video games, then I'll know that I have succeeded," the brainchild behind "Donkey Kong" and other hits said at last week's E3 Media and Business Summit.

For Miyamoto and Nintendo Co., making games more appealing to a broader audience has been a core strategy in recent years. And it appears to be working.

Eight months since the Japanese company launched the Wii, the $250 console has been the top-selling system over far more expensive and technologically sophisticated machines from Microsoft Corp. and Sony Corp.

Though their focus still seems more centered on the traditional hardcore gaming market, Microsoft and Sony both seem intent on learning from Nintendo's success.

Microsoft introduced a variety of new games aimed at a more casual, family friendly crowd on its Xbox Live online system. And one upcoming title, based on a movie-trivia board game called "Scene it?," is being designed to work with a new Xbox 360 controller that has four large buttons instead of the usual 14 small ones.

Sony, while still keeping the focus on hardcore gaming with action titles like "Metal Gear Solid 4: Guns of the Patriots," showcased some titles with more casual appeal such as "echochrome."

In the game, players guide a stick figure through a 3-D moveable maze that resembles something from artist M.C. Escher.

Nintendo, not to be outdone, rolled out additional games and new controllers — including a wireless plastic mat that can be used as a virtual fitness machine.

But Miyamoto doesn't believe it's a race between the Wii and the other two big players on the block.

"I don't really view it as a competition," Miyamoto says. "My focus is on what I can do to make video games more interesting and more relevant." MATT SLAGLE (AP)

Facebook Gaining Users

NEW YORK | The online hangout MySpace appears to be less popular among teens as rival Facebook draws more of the high school crowd, according to new measurements from comScore Media Metrix.

MySpace still commands a lead over Facebook overall and within individual age groups, but U.S. visitors under 18 to MySpace dropped 30 percent over the past year, while Facebook's rose about 2½ times.

Both MySpace and Facebook showed growth in all other age groups. Overall, MySpace grew 35 percent to 70 million users, while Facebook doubled to 28 million.

In June, MySpace had a 10 percent share of all page views among those 12-17, compared with 12 percent a year earlier. Facebook increased to 7.0 percent from 3.1 percent during that period.

Facebook's growth is partly attributable to the fact that its overall user numbers were low to begin with. Until late 2005, the site was closed to all but college communities. (AP)

AS EXPECTED: He's charmed America yet again. "Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix" stole the show this weekend, raking in $77.4 million, bringing the total to $140 million since it opened July 11. "Transformers" was bumped to No. 2.

Entertainment

Turning Into Tracy

Newcomer Nikki Blonsky stars in yet another 'Hairspray'

ROLES | From the first time she saw "Hairspray" on Broadway, Nikki Blonsky was dying to play its plump, sparkling teen heroine, Tracy Turnblad. At 16, Blonsky was too young when she auditioned for the stage role. A year later, the role of Tracy was hers, not on stage but in a big-screen adaptation of the musical that opens July 20.

Overnight, Blonsky went from teenager with only high school stage credits and a part-time job at an ice cream store to a lead role alongside John Travolta, Michelle Pfeiffer, Queen Latifah and Christopher Walken.

Blonsky — who had been singing since she was 3, starred in such productions as "Carmen" and "Kiss Me Kate" at her high school on New York's Long Island and seen countless other musicals on Broadway — formed a bond with Tracy unlike anything she had felt with other characters.

"I was just electrified by Tracy," Blonsky, now 18, said in an interview over breakfast at the Four Seasons Hotel. "We kind of have the same passion, the same drive, the theory of nothing will stop us and why can't anybody do anything they want to do?

"It was the first time I ever felt understood, if you will, by another person. By Tracy. I felt, oh my gosh, she gets me. Whoever wrote this gets me."

At 4 feet, 10 inches and well into plus sizes (she won't disclose her weight), Blonsky is not the usual ingenue. Her looks perfectly suit "Hairspray," which beneath its catchy tunes and peppy dance numbers carries a message for anyone who does not fit prevailing notions of beauty.

The musical version is based on John Waters' 1988 film starring Ricki Lake as tubby Tracy, a force of nature who leads the charge to integrate a 1960s TV dance show in Baltimore.

Blonsky caught "Hairspray" director Adam Shankman's eye early on. She fit all the filmmakers' criteria — size, talent, charm and the fact that she was an unknown.

"She's very pretty, and she had extraordinary confidence. She seemed to love the way her body was and demonstrated all of Tracy's kind of unabashed zeal," Shankman said. "What you're seeing on that screen is who Nikki is. I didn't want anyone to have to act like Tracy."

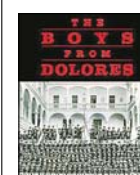

Five months after her first audition, Blonsky had the role.

For Editors, Few Errors to Catch

The quartet changes its mood without compromising quality

MUSIC | Like most post-punk revivalists, Editors often draw comparisons to such genre stalwarts as Joy Division and early Echo and the Bunnymen.

But the British quartet, who depicted a dark, industrialized image of their life in native Birmingham on 2005's "The Back Room," make an ambitious attempt to stand out from the pack on their sophomore effort, "An End Has a Start."

Without forsaking the goth vibe, propelled by frontman Tom Smith's deep baritone, the band shines more light on its songwriting — relying on piano and synthesizer arrangements to heighten the guitar punch.

Russell Leetch (bass) and Ed Lay (drums, percussion) keep a simple groove, allowing Chris Urbancowicz to showcase haunting melodies on both lead guitar and synthesizer that function more like muffled screams than overpowering wails.

The 1-2 punch of "Smokers Outside the Hospital Doors" and the outstanding title track set the table nicely before the introspective "The Weight of the World." They decry the everyday grind on a driving "The Racing Rats," lift the spirits with "Push Your Head to the Air," and offer the love-sick "Spiders."

A somewhat lighter side to Editors for sure, but they still lurk near the shadows in all the right spots. JOHN KOSIK (AP)

Entertainment

ATTRACTIVIST: "Blood Diamond" was just the beginning. The Discovery Channel is teaming up with megastar Leonardo DiCaprio to launch its new channel, Planet Green. To start, he will produce a new series titled "Eco-Town."

Danger From a Distance

Watching others take risks is the hot new trend in television

HAZARDOUS | Few sane people want to visit a storm-tossed Bering Sea, the sizzling Sahara Desert and Canada's Northwest Territories in January. Experiencing them from a comfortable chair in front of a flat-screen television, however, is all the rage.

Shows about adventure seekers in forbidding lands are among the hottest on cable television. "Deadliest Catch," about crab fishermen off the Alaska coast, is Discovery's most popular show, while "Ice Road Truckers" is setting ratings records for The History Channel. Unhinged survivalist Bear Grylls of Discovery's "Man vs. Wild" is a new pinup star.

Both "Deadliest Catch" and "Ice Road Truckers" were hunches that really paid off.

Viewership for the third season of "Deadliest Catch" grew by 20 percent and June's season finale was seen by nearly 4 million people — big numbers for basic cable.

"It's our 'American Idol,'" said Jane Root, Discovery's executive vice president and general manager.

For a couple of weeks of back-breaking work on lurching, ice-slicked ship decks a fisherman can earn a year's wages. Or he could die. Nine have drowned in the Bering Sea since Discovery began filming the series, although none on boats where the network was filming.

The series is like an old television

ON THIN ICE: America tunes in to watch the stars of "Ice Road Truckers" drive across frozen lakes to save time getting equipment to diamond mines.

Western, Root said.

"It's touched something rather big and mythic in society today," she said.

"The idea of those kind of rewards and danger existing in society is fascinating to people."

The stars of "Ice Road Truckers" face a different kind of danger. They need to deliver massive loads of equipment to busy diamond mines up north. And the work needs to be done in the dead of winter, when frozen lakes offer the most direct routes.

They can feel the ice crack and groan as they drive their big rigs over the lakes. If calculations about ice thickness are wrong, the trucks would plunge into the water, which would then freeze over faster than any rescue could be attempted.

Producers are blessed with indelible characters — the old salts, cocky risk-takers, scared rookies.

"I find real people much more fascinating than the ones you could make up in Hollywood," said Nancy Dubuc, executive vice president and general manager of The History Channel. "Everyone has someone you either love or love to hate, and that's what you look for."

Special Report solves the “My home isn’t selling” problem

WASHINGTON METRO – A “Special Report” explodes what its author exposes as “The myth of slow home sales.” In fact, the Report explains, in clear and plain English, how a home owner who wants to sell can not only count on a sale within 120 days but can be guaranteed that the sale will occur.

The Report proves its accuracy by quoting specific local instances in which the technique it describes has sold homes time after time, quickly, efficiently, and at a favorable price.

The author of the report, noted realtor Frank Sanya, has made numerous appearances on both television and radio.

Mr. Sanya states that the Report represents the compendium of his many years of real estate experience and can be of substantial value to homeowners, especially those whose homes have been on the market unsold for a considerable period of time. The author emphasizes that although he does not accept every listing, by following the Report’s procedures he accomplishes a sale in every instance in which he is the broker of record.

The secret, says the Report, is a combination of traits and procedures that consistently result in a successful sale. For a free copy of the Report, go to a private but available Web site – www.WantItSoldNow.com.

War Tactics

A squadron of robot attack planes will be piloted from U.S. soil

The airplane is the size of a jet fighter, powered by a turboprop engine, able to fly at 300 mph and reach 50,000 feet. It is outfitted with infrared, laser and radar targeting and a ton and a half of guided bombs and missiles.

The Reaper is loaded, but there is no one on board. Its pilot will sit at a video console 7,000 miles away, in Nevada, as it bombs targets in Iraq.

The arrival of these outsized "hunter-killer" drones — the first robot attack squadron in aviation history — will be a watershed moment, though the Air Force plans a low-key debut.

The Reaper's first combat deployment is expected in Afghanistan, and senior Air Force officers estimate it will land in Iraq sometime between this fall and next spring.

"With more Reapers, I could send manned airplanes home," said Lt. Gen. Gary North.

The Associated Press has learned that the Air Force is building a 400,000-square-foot expansion of the ramp now used for Predator drones at Balad, the biggest U.S. air base in Iraq. That new staging area could be turned over to Reapers.

The estimated two dozen or more unmanned MQ-1 Predators now doing surveillance over Iraq, as the 46th Expeditionary Reconnaissance Squadron, have become mainstays of the U.S. war effort, offering round-the-clock airborne "eyes" watching over road convoys, tracking nighttime insurgent movements via infrared sensors, and occasionally unleashing one of their two Hellfire missiles on a target.

While the Predator is armed with just two Hellfire missiles, the Reaper can carry 14 of the air-to-ground weapons.

"It's not a recon squadron," Col. Joe Guasella, operations chief for the Central Command's air component, said of the Reapers. "It's an attack squadron, with a lot more kinetic ability."

"Kinetic" — Pentagon slang for destructive power — is what the Air Force had in mind when it christened its newest robot plane with an ominous name.

"The name Reaper captures the lethal nature of this new weapon system," said Gen. T. Michael Moseley, Air Force chief of staff.

The Reaper is expected to be flown as the Predator is — by a two-member team of pilot and sensor operator who work at computer control stations and video screens that display what the vehicle "sees." Teams at Balad, housed in a hangar beside the runways, perform the takeoffs and landings, and similar teams at Nevada's Creech Air Force Base, linked to the aircraft via satellite, take over for the long hours of overflying the Iraqi landscape.

"Our [current] problem is speed," Maj. Chris Snodgrass said of the 140-mph Predator. "If there are troops in contact, we may not get there fast enough. The Reaper will be faster and fly farther."

The new robot plane is expected to be able to stay aloft for 14 hours.

"It's going to bring us flexibility, range, speed and persistence," said North, "such that I will be able to work lots of areas for a long, long time." CHARLES J. HANLEY (AP)

The Fight Over Fajitas

Food

Mexico is pushing restaurants to serve more authentic fare

Worried by the global proliferation of deep fat-fried chimichangas, fajitas, margaritas and fried ice-cream, the Mexican government is recruiting U.S. and Canadian restaurateurs to set the world straight on what is real Mexican food.

So proud is Mexico of its cuisine that the government has lobbied UNESCO to declare Mexican food a “cultural patrimony of humanity.” And the government recently flew in 50 Mexican restaurant owners from the U.S. and Canada to teach them what’s authentic and what’s not.

“Mexican food gives prestige to the country, promotes its image,” said Carlos Gonzalez, executive director of the government’s Institute for Mexicans Living Abroad, which organized the forum for the chefs and restaurateurs. “What we want is for these restaurants to promote Mexican culture through their food.”

Officials, however, have their work cut out for them. Mexican food often is misunderstood, from Bahrain to Birmingham, Ala.

“A lot of so-called Mexican restaurants just decorate their walls

“We need to be flexible and understand that a lot of people have yet to develop a taste for our food.”

JEANETTE AVILA, RESTAURATEUR

with bright sombreros and hire a mariachi and think that makes them authentic,” said Rosa Maria Barajas, owner of Rosa’s Plane Food at the airport in Calexico, Calif.

“I only use authentic Mexican cheeses like Cotija or fresh, white cheese, but none of those weird cheeses,” she said.

Barajas was among the 50 restaurant owners the government flew to Mexico City to hear culinary historians lecture on the importance of the nation’s food and sample traditional dishes such as grasshoppers and prickly pear jam, all from the Oaxaca state in southern Mexico.

Traditional Mexican cuisine

dates back 3,000 years to the Mayans, who based their diet on corn, beans and vegetables. Most Americans confuse Tex-Mex specialties such as chili, chimichangas, nachos and hard-shell tacos with real Mexican food. The same goes for Cal-Mex fusions, such as the burrito, which combines fresh vegetables, fish and even fruit-based salsas with rice and beans in a flour tortilla.

The problem for Mexican restaurateurs is that the American fusions have become too popular to avoid altogether.

“It is important to promote our culture and educate people about real Mexican food, but we also need to be flexible and understand that a lot of people in the United States have yet to develop a taste for our food,” said Jeanette Avila, who owns the El Rancho restaurant in southwest Detroit.

To keep her customers happy, Avila keeps two menus: one Tex-Mex, which includes the always-popular fajitas and margaritas, and a traditional menu that offers a dish of breaded pork feet dressed in egg and topped with ranchera sauce.

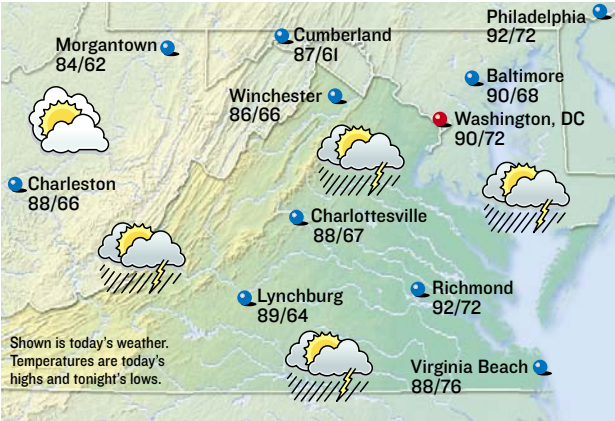

“We sell both menus pretty evenly, and that has a lot to do with non-Latinos being more open to try traditional Mexican food,” Avila said.

As Free as the Wind

Maybe you know what free running is, maybe you don't (to see it in action, watch the beginning of "Casino Royale," in which creator Sebastian Foucan uses a mix of running and acrobatics to dodge evil-doers). K SWISS, the first to introduce the all-leather tennis shoe, is now unveiling the Ariake ($100, kswiss.com), the first shoe made specifically for free running. Now you can be just like those guys in the Nike commercials or the dancers in Madonna's "Hung Up" video—or at least you'll have some new sneakers.

Beauty

Color Me Happy

Excellent hair color either comes naturally, or costs serious cash. Protecting those precious highlights takes a product like the new BAREX COLOURLIFE MASQUE ($28, littleposhshop.com). Apply the neutral-smelling lotion after shampooing and comb through. Then, step out of the shower (which, admittedly, is a pain) and hit hair with the dryer for two to three minutes. Hop back in and rinse. While we had problems with the lack of de-tangling, hair was bouncy and vibrant, and we enjoyed thinking we could be blonde just a bit longer with this as safety net.

Lisa De Moraes

Post TV columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Friday and expressed her feelings about "Big Love" and the suburbs, Joey Fatone of "The Singing Bee" and Condoleezza Rice.

You seem to really dislike "Big Love." Why? The characters are so over-the-top that I can't even begin to take them seriously and can't wait to see what craziness they'll get into each week. It's great. It's so suburban, and the suburbs frighten me. I wish someone would give each of the women a little hatchet.

I noticed that Condoleezza Rice was on all three morning shows at the same time today, around 7:05 a.m. — I thought they were live? I guess some of the interviews are taped? I missed all three Condoleezza Rice interviews — which I count as a very, very good morning. So I don't know which were taped and which was live. But seriously, does it matter?

I decided to tune in to "Singing Bee" after reading Tom Shales to see the train wreck for myself. I know it was produced in a hurry, but whoever thought Joey Fatone could host a show should be fired.

Joey Fatone is the most inspired train-wreck casting ever. Nobody thought Joey Fatone could host a show — that's why they hired him. It's called neo-casting.

I've been living without cable for over year and feel myself weakening. Cable is expensive and I'm cheap, but I feel I'm missing a lot. I just watch the Big Three: Fox, the CW, and PBS. To get or not to get? Doesn't all the good stuff show up on YouTube anyway?

Horoscope

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You should be able to promote harmony even in situations that, in the past, have been characterized by conflict. You may be in the middle.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You can bet that someone will try to be unusually aggressive with you—and it's up to you to disarm this individual with passive rationality.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is a good day to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Someone is watching or listening—and everything counts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You'll have to rely on your wits to see you through a situation that was not of your making. A natural talent is likely to shine during the evening hours.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You can be imaginative when you have to be—but you may too often choose to do things in a routine manner. Break free of old patterns.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Take care you're not confusing fact and fiction, reality and fantasy. A Cancer native may not buy what you're trying to sell.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're likely to set off fireworks of some kind before the day is out, but this may be unintentional. Try to maintain a clear perspective.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Now is no time to take action without thinking things through as completely as possible. Take care you make no inadvertent errors.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You are feeling capable and confident at this time, but be aware there are those who may feel you're not yet up to the task.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're likely to come up with some unusual ideas about how the world works, and only a good friend will be willing to hear you out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A clash of temperament can be expected. Watch out for a Libra native who claims to know something you don't—this may just be bravado.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're in no mood for practicality; you want things to come spontaneously, even if they lead you down a path fraught with hazards.
